The Words of Eternal Life - 75

Jesus said to them, "Truly, I say to you, in the new world, when the Son of Man shall sit on his glorious throne, you who have followed me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. And every one who has left houses or brothers or sisters or father or mother or children or lands, for my name's sake, will receive a hundredfold, and inherit eternal life. But many that are first will be last, and the last first."

Meditations . . .

*“His face shone like the sun and his clothes became white as light.”
(Matthew 17:2)*

Writing about today’s Gospel reading on the transfiguration of Christ, St. Thomas Aquinas used an analogy. He said that if an archer is going to shoot his arrow straight, he needs to see the target. Aquinas also said that we can’t know which road to take unless we know the destination. And when the road is difficult, knowing that we’re headed to a great destination can make the difficult journey worthwhile.

How does all this apply to the transfiguration? Aquinas said that when Jesus was transfigured, he gave Peter, James, and John a glimpse of their own future. They saw Jesus in his heavenly glory, and embedded in that miracle was the promise that all who follow him would also be filled with this glory. As St. Paul told the Philippians, God will “change our lowly body to conform with his glorified body” (3:21).

Jesus knew that he was headed toward his own suffering and death. He knew that the disciples would be shaken to the core by the events of his passion, and that the road ahead of them would involve hardship and suffering. So he revealed his glory to them to give them a glimpse of where he was headed—and a glimpse of their own target. He gave them a foretaste of their own future glory, and that revelation strengthened them for the difficult path ahead.

Let today’s Gospel do that for you, too! We are at the start of Lent, but we know that the time will come when we will see Jesus, beaten and bloodied, stripped of all dignity, raised up on a cross between two criminals. That’s the time to remember the transfiguration, when his glory shone brightly on the mountain. Even in his suffering, Jesus knew what his destination was: resurrection. And in our struggles, we can look toward our destination—heavenly glory, in union with Jesus!

“Jesus, help me hold onto this glorious vision as I aim toward heaven.”

“LOVE ONE ANOTHER, AS I HAVE LOVED YOU.” (John:34)
Part II [Excerpt from The Word Among Us]

Jim and Monica Murphy were devoted parents.

One year, however, during the traditional summer vacation, one of the Murphy boys—Mike—accused his brother Pat of wrongdoing. Pat retaliated by digging up old accusations against Mike that had never been resolved. The other children joined the argument, siding with one or the other of their brothers. The fight escalated to such heights that Mike and Pat both left the gathering early. They were so angry with each other that they refused to be in the same house together and they forbade their children from seeing their cousins.

Both men tried to continue to raise their children with the special sense of family that their parents had taught them, but the bitterness between them was a serious obstacle that even their children could sense. Jim and Monica were devastated by the split, but their pleas for reconciliation seemed to fall on deaf ears.
